

Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

WINTER SET FOR TRAPPING BEAVER

The beaver ice-set illustrated below has been successfully used by an old time trapper in Alaska.

Several slight modifications can be made where necessary under different conditions.

The depth of the trap below the water level will govern the size of beaver caught. It is stated that the best results are obtained and only large beaver caught if the trap is 18 or more inches below the water level.

